The Balfour Project launched the first pilot Peace Advocacy Fellowship in 2019, since which there have been four further cohorts. The Fellowship programme is open to recent graduates (gap year), postgraduate or final year undergraduate students in the UK who are passionate about promoting equal rights for Palestinians and Israelis.

This year we have adapted our programme to include two distinct pathways: an Equal Rights Advocacy Fellow will go through the training programme and work on a smaller scale project, and an Intern will also work with our team on education/advocacy projects, as illustrated in the accompanying graphic.
